LOCAL MATTERS.

John H. Daily of Winner, S. D., was in the city last Sunday visiting relatives.

Cashier S. J. Weekes of the O'Neill National bank has been confined to his home all week with a severe attack of neuralgia.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Arbuthnot are rejoicing over the arrival of a young daughter at their home.

D. Sammons and A. L. Hiatt of Fairview township were O'Neill visitors last Wednesday and made a pleasant call at this office.

William Myers, one of Grattan's most prosperous farmers, was a caller Monday and extended his subscription to this household necessity for another year.

The district court jury, which was excused from duty in December until February 9, when they will again convene in this city for the trial of several important law suits.

Mr. and Mrs. George Henry of Dallas, S. D., were in the city last week visiting relatives and friends.

George is employed in the electric light plant there and says that business is fairly good in the Rosebud country.

Conrad Wettlauffer, one of the hustling and prosperous farmers of Shields township, left last Monday morning for a couple of weeks visit with relatives and friends at Norfolk, Emerson and other points in the eastern part of the state.

The members of the county board have been busy the past week making settlement with county officers. They have made settlement with the sheriff, county clerk and county superintendent and are now at work upon the books of the county judge.

Charles Petr, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Petr south of this city, died in a hospital in Omaha this morning, following an operation for appendicitis. Deceased was about twenty-three years of age and was taken to Omaha a week ago last Tuesday to submit to an operation. The remains will be brought to this city to-morrow afternoon and the funeral will be held Sunday morning.

Leo Mullen returned last Sunday morning from a two weeks visit with relatives and friends at Deadwood, S. D. Leo says that he had one of the most enjoyable times of his life during his visit and has been talking so much about Deadwood since his return that his friends believe that there must be some attraction, outside the "beauty" of the town, that keeps his mind continually upon Deadwood.

Naper News: An old biddy hen slipped one over on the weather man at the F. M. Beck farm, just south of town recently when she proudly brought off a brood of nine husky young chicks from a nest which she had stolen away in under the north porch of the house. The belated little chicks are all alive and doing nicely but have been transferred to a basket beside the kitchen fire.

The members of Holt Camp No. 1710, Modern Woodmen of America, will have a grand feed at the lodge rooms on the date of their next meeting, February 10. At this meeting delegates to the county camp, which will elect delegates to the state camp, will be elected and every member of the local camp is urged to attend this meeting. We will be able to announce the program for the evening in our next issue.

Sioux City Journal: C. W. Baker, president of the Baker Construction Co., of Omaha, also president of the company projecting an interurban between Sioux City and Niobrara, Neb., is in Sioux City to confer with Commercial club officials in regard to his project. Mr. Baker stated that with the winning of concessions before the Nebraska commission that he was in a position to say that there was no longer doubt that his project would be developed and that the outlook was most encouraging. Mr. Baker said that men were still grading runways near the proposed power dam on the Niobrara river, with intent to hold franchise rights.

That The Frontier as an advertising medium is without a peer in this section was again demonstrated at the Wadlington sale, northeast of this city last Monday. Like the Bell sale, that was held last week, this sale was advertised exclusively in The Frontier and was the most successful held this winter. Cattle sold as high as $80 per head and horses sold as high as $175.00. If you are going to have a sale it will pay you to have the attractive sale bills that this office turns out and to advertise the fact through the columns of this paper. The expense is not great and it made money for Wadlington and Bell, why not you?

Last Tuesday F. M. Pixley sold his residence to P. J. O'Donnell of Atkinson, receiving $4,000 cash therefor. This is one of the neatest little residences in the city and was built by Mr. Pixley last summer and is a very desirable residence property. Mrs. Pixley's health has been very poor the past year and she will go west for a few months in an endeavor to recover her health. Mr. Pixley thought it better to sell than rent the place and having an opportunity to make an advantageous sale disposed of the property. Mr. O'Donnell will take possession the first of March and will move his family here from his ranch, south of Atkinson, where he has lived for the past fifteen years.

There are several of our readers who are still delinquent in their subscription and we would greatly appreciate it if all those who are in arrears would call and pay up. We have been under heavy expense the past two months, in the way of new equipment, in order to be in position to get out a better paper each week and if those who are owing us would pay up it would relieve the financial stringency around this office. We have been very lenient with our readers in the past and now that we are placed in a position where we have to have money we trust that our readers will appreciate our past leniency and promptly pay what they owe. Who will be the first one to respond?

This office is in receipt of a letter from Miss E. Marie Alderson, daughter of J. M. Alderson of Chambers, ordering the address of her paper changed from Fort Worth, Texas, to Kenosha, Wisconsin, to which city she moved January 1. Miss Alderson had been teaching short hand and typewriting in a college at Fort Worth the past six months, resigning her position there the latter part of last year to accept a like position with the College of Commerce of Kenosha. The latter school is one of the largest commercial colleges in the country, being one of the national accredited colleges, and her selection to a position on the faculty of this school is a decided promotion for her and proves her fitness and ability. Her many Holt county friends will be pleased to learn of her success in her chosen profession.

The case of Flannery vs. Flannery occupied the attention of Judge Dickson in district court the forepart of the week. This case grew out of the estate of the late John Flannery, one of the pioneer residents of western Holt, who died a few years ago. Prior to his death he disposed of his real estate by deeding it to his three sons, they to pay a certain amount to his daughters. When the will was offered for probate in the county court, objection was made to the admittance of the will to probate, but the objection was overruled by the county judge and he appointed Michael Flannery, one of the sons, as administrator of the estate. This decision was appealed from and in the district court Judge Dickson sustained the county court. A new action was then started to have the administrator dismissed and it was this action that was on trial in court this week. Decision will probably be handed down the first of the week.

James Quinn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Quinn living just east of town, accompanied by his sister, Miss Nellie, left last Saturday morning for Mapleton, Iowa, where on Tuesday morning, January 20, Mr. Quinn was united in marriage to Miss Theresa Schanher, daughter of one of the prominent farmers of that section. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Wagner in the Catholic church at Mapleton, in the presence of a select number of the relatives and friends of the contracting parties. After the wedding the young people left for a visit with relatives in the Black Hills and in other points in South Dakota, and are expected to arrive in this city next Saturday. They will make their home on the farm of the groom's parents, just east of this city. James has many friends in this city and vicinity who will extend best wishes to him and bride and wish them many years of happiness and prosperity, in which The Frontier heartily joins.

John Coyne, son of Mrs. Thomas Coyne of this city, died in a hospital in Salt Lake City, Utah, last Saturday morning. Deceased had been ailing for several months, suffering from the dread plague of western miners, miners consumption. He had been in the hospital for about six weeks and had improved so much that he had left there about a month ago. The improvement was only temporary, however, and he returned to the hospital again the night before he died, knowing that the end was very near. Friends of the family in Salt Lake notified the family here of his death and the remains were shipped to this city for interment, reaching this city Monday night and the funeral was held from the Catholic church Wednesday morning, interment in the Catholic cemetery. Deceased was nearly thirty-seven years of age at the time of his death and grew to manhood upon the old homestead just north of this city. He was a large robust man, the soul of good nature and was known as "Happy Jack," on account of his jovial disposition. He left this county about thirteen years ago and since that time had followed his occupation as a miner in nearly all the western mining states. His death was a sad blow to his aged mother, his sorrowing brothers and sisters and the sympathy of the people of this city is extended to them in their hour of sorrow.

The members of the county board were over in Boyd county last Friday, upon invitation of the Boyd county board, in an attempt to get together upon a location for the state aid bridge which is to be built by the two counties and the state. The forepart of the week the Boyd county board notified the members of the Holt county board that they would agree to the wishes of the members of the board of this county and locate the bridge at Coon Island. A couple of days afterwards another notice was received from Boyd county stating that they had become involved in a controversy among themselves and asked the members from this county to come over and help them get the matter straightened out. The board from this county went over and the bridge matter was again thoroughly discussed, pro and con. From what we have been able to learn, from the members of the board,

.. WE SOLD ..

Up to January first, this year, more Hard Coal than we sold altogether last season—and last season wasn't slow. THERE MUST BE A REASON.

We expect to have another car of Scranton Nut on track this week.

THE Galena Lumber Co.,
Clyde King, Proprietor

the matter is as far from settlement now as it was at the conclusion of the joint session of the two boards at Norfolk last spring. Some of the Boyd county board want the bridge located at Parshall crossing, while others are in favor of Coon Island. The main objection to the location of the bridge at Coon Island, according to one of the Boyd county members, was whether they could legally vacate the Parshall site or not, and if they could not legally do so, is afraid some person might come into court and compel them to build another bridge at Parshall's crossing. If this point could be settled to the satisfaction of the members the bridge would undoubtedly be located at Coon Island.

Our Baby Hugh.
Frontier, January 8: Hugh James, the eighteen-month old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh J. Boyle, died last Wednesday afternoon, after a few days' illness, of pneumonia. The funeral will be held to-morrow morning from the Catholic church. The many friends of the grief-stricken parents tender their sympathy in their hour of trouble.

Little hands and arms so dimpled;
Golden hair, soft and like silk,
Cheeks so pretty and pink.
Beautiful starry eyes of heaven's blue
And lips like the roses sweet.

This was our darling baby,
Whom God, an angel made.
A baby boy, the pride of all,
Was sent from God to bring us joy;
A baby, so good, so perfect;
That God thought best to take him.
Little feet tottering around
So many times did stumble;
Then mamma with kisses, the baby's hurt would heal.
Many times with out-stretched arms,
The little lips would say: "Bye, Mamma, Bye."
O! Sweet baby boy how you are missed by Mother, Father and Little Sister;
But 'twas God's will to take you Home,
And 'tis best to say "Thy Will Be Done."
A little guiding angel you will always be,
Whom someday, we hope to meet in Heaven.

Card of Thanks.
We wish to thank the many kind neighbors and friends who were so good to us during the illness and after the death of our baby boy.
Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Boyle.
